The transition from the military to the civilian sector is very difficult for most service members. The support and resources that I received (and are available to others) are incredibly helpful.

I was very skeptical about working with VetJobs because I was very exhausted and discouraged with my job search. I had filled out more than 400 applications and only had a handful of interviews, so I knew something needed to change. I'm so happy I decided to take a chance.

I learned how to optimize my resume for each application to get through an ATS. My Career Specialist recommended free training and certification resources that could help me enhance my resume. She was attentive to my personal needs and didn't just provide me some canned one-size-fits-all support.

My career specialist, Brandy Sulewski, was a huge help to me in my job search. She taught me how to target my resume, whereas I had been accustomed to using one or two resumes when applying for employment. She provided info to explain targeting my resume.

There are so many military support organizations available to us that it can be a challenge to know which ones to reach out to and connect with. I think VetJobs & Military Spouse Jobs can be a great addition to veteran and milspouse sources of support.

I am so grateful for all of the help I received. My Career Specialist checked in with me periodically and was always there to answer my questions quickly and accurately. They also really helped me with salary negotiation once I secured a job offer. This was especially helpful as I had never negotiated a salary before and had anxiety about the process.

Military Spouse Jobs helped me to prepare two resumes (civilian and federal) in the correct format. I learned how to view job postings to do an overall needs assessment and then target my resume to the qualifications of those listings. There were weekly “check-ins” by my Career Specialist.

I received assistance with federal and civilian resume writing and applications. Jenna, my Career Specialist, advised me and provided resources to prepare for the interview with the government agency. There were 43 applicants and with her assistance, I was able to stand out among the applicants and be hired the day after my interview.

Renetta was the coach I needed to get back into corporate America! I was able to comfortably interview for positions after realizing what should be revealed and what information was irrelevant to share. My confidence was lifted and I was subsequently hired for my dream job - Marketing Director! She even accommodated the 8-hour time difference.
